Sheriff John R. Wilcox of Washington county says that the complaints in the main for the county come from Narragangett Pier, and since the issuance of the governor's orders he visited the Pier to enforce the orders, but found that Chief of Police Haswell had preceded him and that the lid had been laced on all known gambling places and hermetically sealed. The sheriff said he would take steps at once to make sure that Washington county shall be free from any kind of gambling, and that he would see to it that it remains so. So far as Westerly is concerned, the sheriff said that with the co-operation of Police Chief Brown there would be strict adherence to the governor. Beeckman stated that in
